

EDITORIAL

At the beginning of New Year, it's time for beginning good things. May this year bring happiness, new inspirations and new success to all members of Royal Thai College of Obstetricians and Gynaecologists (RTCOG).

Improvement of Thai Journal of Obstetrics and Gynaecology (TJOG) has been documented. TJOG has been approved by the Thai Journal Citation Index Center (TCI) to be qualified in the first group of Thai journals. TJOG has already been accepted by the Asian Citation Index (ACI) on September 2015 to be included in the ACI database.

We would like to thank past RTCOG executive board, past editor in chief, editorial board and staff, reviewers, all members of RTCOG, and all researchers for their kind contribution and support to TJOG.

As the new editor in chief and editorial board, we would like to serve the members of RTCOG for publishing their works in TJOG, and plan to improve the quality of TJOG to be index in Scopus database. We welcome the studies from worldwide researchers.

Prof. Vorapong Phupong, M.D.
Editor in Chief