

---

EDITORIAL

---

Last 30 years ago, it was predicted that the electronic/computer revolution would dramatically alter and decrease the use of print publications, and we have arrived at this point. Today, the children of the electronic/computer revolution are the physicians, scientists, and researchers. They are demanding more advanced technology in an increasingly paperless world, and we must deliver medical researches and information in a digital fashion. We have seen a shift in most major Obstetrics and Gynecology journals from print to online access with varying features.

What does this mean for you as an author? You can submit your research work easily. You will still receive a prompt expert peer review of your work with high standard. Furthermore, your work will be more rapidly disseminated to a wider international readers and finally high citations.

What does this mean for you as a reader? It means that, from nearly anywhere in the world, you can access to the Thai Journal of Obstetrics and Gynaecology easily. You can choose to read it on paper or on an electronic medium of your choice (notebook, ipad, etc.). In the near future, you may see numerous unlimited colored figures in our journal, surgical videos and hear author interviews via the web page of the journal.

Furthermore, the advantages of online journal are to eliminate the adverse environmental impact of printing and the cost of mailing hard copies of the Journal. Moreover, it will allow us to minimize future price increases and develop the journal along with the advancement of multimedia technologies. Finally, we may move to online-only publication.

The online version of Thai Journal of Obstetrics and Gynaecology is available at <http://tci-thaijo.org/index.php/tjog> and <http://www rtcog or th/html/journal php>. The readers, authors and reviewers can register and access to the journal via <http://tci-thaijo.org/index.php/tjog>. If you have any problems on submission, you can directly contact to the editorial office at Royal College Thai College of Obstetrics and Gynaecologists.

We thank you, both authors and readers, for your loyalty to our journal. We are at the tipping point of exciting times, and we are ready for this new adventure together with you. My colleagues on the Editorial Board and in the Editorial Office join me in wishing you a happy and successful New Year. We hope to have the opportunity to consider some of your best works for publication in our Journal.

Prof. Nares Sukcharoen MD.
Editor in Chief